Job Aids and Training Opportunities Looking for detailed instructions on how to accomplish a task within NC E-Procurement? Job aids may be found by visiting the NC E-Procurement User Training web site. The job aids available include PDF materials, as well as Web-Based Training courses. The Web-Based Training Courses are divided into individual courses covering topics such as system navigation, requisitioning, reporting and security administration. They are self-paced and provide an opportunity for users to build skills or reinforce knowledge.

Furthermore, each month the Division of Purchase & Contract (P&C) hosts NC E-Procurement and eQuote training in Raleigh. These instructor-led training sessions are open to all NC E-Procurement users. For more information and to register for upcoming courses, please see the 2015 Course Catalog. Training dates for February through July 2015 have recently been added to the course catalog.

The NC E-Procurement team is also available to provide free onsite training on an as-needed basis. If you would like to discuss available training opportunities and your entity's training needs, please contact the NC E-Procurement Help Desk, 888-211-7440, option 1. Please note that all onsite training requests should be submitted by your Security Administrator.

Tips & Tricks: Selecting Supplier Locations When adding non-catalog items to an eRequisition, users are required to select a Supplier. Once a supplier is selected, the 'Supplier Location' field automatically defaults to a location that may not be the correct location to which the purchase order should be sent. The default location can be changed by clicking 'Select' next to the 'Supplier Location' field and then clicking the 'Select' button next to the desired location. As long as the Supplier has multiple Supplier Locations registered, this action may also be completed for other types of line items (e.g., punchout, eQuote, etc.). For more information on creating eRequisitions, please review the 'eRequisitioning' section of the NC E-Procurement User Training web site.
